

THE BUNYIP

The Bunyip is a First Nations Australian monster which was said to live in rivers, lakes and swamps. Its howl carried through the night air, making people afraid as the bunyip hunted women and children to eat.

As it is a legend rather than a real animal there are no pictures of a bunyip but it might have had teeth like a crocodile, large eyes to see at night and dark skin to hide during the day. In the space below draw the bunyip you think could have captured Wumbirr.

Explores story ideas and imagination to create visual artworks.

© LearnFromPlay | LearnFromPlay.com

